Good Time.

Ipswich High School

136 High Street
Ipswich, MA 01938
1998-1999

With this yearbook, we want to give you a remembrance of your high school year. For all, this year has been full of exciting and difficult times. As our old school is falling down around us, we watch the new school slowly growing in our front yard.

Although it has added some confusion and disruption, it will all be worth it. For all the future graduating classes to come, you can look forward to a new school without buckets in the hall when it rains or bathrooms with actual locks on the doors. With this book we want you to remember your high school year as it tracks the footprints of wicked good times

Wednesday night we know where everyone is, they are having a "Party of Five". How can you not love it with Baily and Charley. You go to Clark Beach for sunbathing, right? If people aren't there you can always go to Markos' house to hang-out.

Where else can you go in town at 11:30 during the summer but

; well I guess you could go to the Diner. I just have a few last things to say

"Ooh sorry" and just give her the what!?

This year was a challenge for the football team. The 1998 football team, starting their year, rather slow. They could not seem to get on top of their game. Part of the way through the season, we saw a huge turn around. They starting winning. It was like a new team. Although they could not make it into the championship, they showed their fans and coach Welch that they wanted to win and were willing to give it everything they had.

With thirteen seniors blazing the trail and with the leadership of co-captains Jen Sinclair and Meghan Wile, the Ipswich 1998 Field Hockey team enjoyed a successful season. Finishing with a record of 4 - 6 - 8 the squad landed one point shy of qualifying for the state tournament. The team played aggressively and dominated the majority of their games, but there were always those few seconds during the game that left them on the short end of the scoreboard. Although they didn't reach their ultimate goal . . . the state tournament, the girls formed long lasting friendships within the team. Some memories include: spaghetti dinners, the alumni game, pizza eating contests at n's house, camp, and of course the teams favorite . . . the butter drill.

The Boys' Soccer team came into this season with intensity and overwhelming attitude. Their overwhelming attitude came from not qualifying for the last years tournament. Considering that this years soccer team had all but two starters returning from last year, so the expectations from Coach Storer were very high coming into this last season.

Coach Storer took those expectations to the next level during pre-season. The team was put through more fitness work than they had ever experienced before with Coach Storer. The running and the fitness work consisted of triple sessions during the summer that occupied the whole day for players. But by that commitment that was shown by the team to go and continue through pre-season, it showed that the hunger was there and the team was going to be very successful in their upcoming season. A five game block highlighted the early part of the season, and a four game set during the middle pushed the team to qualification for the State Tournament. When finally qualifying for the tournament, it made it the third time in four years that the Switch Tiger's Soccer team made it to the tournament.

This year boys' team did a great job, but now we are looking to next years soccer team and who will pick up the slack for an outstanding season and the distance that they went.

Record 3-11-2

The 1998 season was a gigantic learning experience for the girls' soccer team. Hard work and determination helped them to reach their ultimate goal, winning their first game in two years. Co-captains Julie Perry and Genia Lomas led the team to its first, and very exciting game against Manchester under the lights at Salem State College. This past season proved that hard work eventually pays off. Some good memories of the season were the spaghetti dinners and sleepovers. We made many lasting friendships, which added to the team's success. The 1998 season was one of the most productive in many years.

The 1998 Fall Cheerleading season started out for the Tiger Cheerleaders in mid-summer. Together the girls experienced a UCA summer camp, the "Kiddie Camp" fundraiser, car washes and pre-season. The squad worked hard, through countless practices, in order to support all fall sports as well as to compete in the annual Cape Ann Cheerleading competition. The tiger squad placed 1st in the small division and went on to compete in the regional competition at Lowell High School.

In the end, all would agree that the '98 season was a great success and a lot of fun. Together the girls developed the confidence and the types of friendships that will last a life time.

Once again the IHS Golf Team put up a fight. Even though their season ended with no wins, a fun time was had by all. This fall season the team more than doubled in size. New freshman gained experience by practicing at Candlewood and competing in matches. Even though the departing seniors have left with a lacking record, the torch was passed to the new freshman and rest of the team, in hopes that a match will be won.

This year boys' basketball team finished with a record of 12-8. Due to the loss of two major contributors from last years' team, this years' team worked harder to improve their record. The team wasn't expected to be as competitive as the previous years, but throughout the course of the season they surprised everyone including themselves, and were considered one of the best teams in the league. Coach Doug Woodworth led the team to Ipswich's fourth tournament appearance in four years. "We came out and played hard," Woodworth said to one of the local newspapers. "Other teams in the league didn't expect us to be a competitor, but we proved everyone wrong."

At the beginning of the season a lot was to be determined. The seniors' roles became very important, since it was a younger team. The key to the season was unexpected players stepped up game after game besides Ipswich's GO TO guy Jimmy Bodwell. Jimmy was named to the All-League team this year and represented Ipswich at the Cape Ann-Northeastern All Star game. The players decided to have a motto this year and were determined to stick by it. "The harder you work the tougher it is to surrender;" this motto was displayed by the players whether at practice or during the games. Although this years' team might have not been the most talented team ever to play here, no team could compare to them when it came to hustle and desire. Overall the season was a success and Ipswich has good reason to hold their heads up high. We would like to thank the student body and other fans for their persistent support they showed. Good luck to next years' team!

The 1998-1999 Girls' Basketball season was full of expectation. With seven seniors and eight returning players the tigers were expected to succeed in the Cape Ann League and qualify for the state tournament for the first time under Coach Kathy Daly. The team did just that. The Tigers played I and won several exciting games and en route to a 10-9 regular season record. Perhaps the defining moment of the season came when Lauren Washnock scored with four seconds to go to beat North Reading. That victory put the team in an excellent position to finish their season above .500. The team played well all season and hopes that their success will continue throughout the tournament.

-Co-Captain Sarah Keenan

Although the Winter Track teams lacked the numbers this year, they did not lack the determination and commitment to individually improve. The many first time track members all tried hard. The whole team improved substantially. Both the Boys' and Girls' teams did well and are looking forward to a very strong spring season.

Overall, the winter cheerleaders had a great season! With only 12 girls (one senior, 4 juniors, and the rest underclassmen), they managed to receive 6th place at the Cape Ann League competition. They also qualified for the regional competition. These 12 talented girls were extremely dedicated. They worked their hardest and gave it their all throughout the season. In addition to working well as a team, the girls have acquired many new friendships and have become extremely close.

After coming in sixth at last years Massachusetts Envirothon, we worked extremely hard to prepare for this year's with the hopes of taking first place. We've had lots of fun this year with treks through the woods, a sleepover at UMass and a number of guest speakers, all while learning about the environment. Our hopes are that our numbers will increase over the next few years so that we may become one of the leading high school environmental programs in the state.

The Chameleon

The Chameleon is a bi-annual literary magazine that is made by and for students. Students submit their stories, poems and artwork and the Chameleon staff, which is composed of the students in Mrs. Bennedetto's creative writing class, who skillfully select the heartiest pieces for publication. Some of this years submissions included introspective poetry, social commentary, harsh portrayals of the dark side of high school life and other such curiosities. The Chameleon makes two goals for itself: one, to display the many talents of students at Ipswich High School and two, to provide the students, teachers and parents with something fresh, and engaging to read.

The Tiger Transcript is the title of the high school's page in the Ipswich Chronicle that is written and composed by Mr. Laakso's Journalism class. Different than in years past, part of the staff is made up of students who are taking the course for a second time since they enjoyed it so much the first. The main point of the class is to make students aware of the media industry and how it functions, they learn this through videos, film strips, books and analyzing different journalistic mediums. Student who take the course also become very familiar with Zippy, his Ding Dong/Ho Ho addiction, Griffy, Zorbina and all the other colorful characters from Bill Griffith's Zippy the Pinhead that Mr. Laakso does so much. The Tiger Transcript is made up of an eclectic group of students who even if they're not interested in journalism at the start of the course often find themselves looking at the media with a newfound respect and a sharper understanding of the way it works.

Building sets, trying to fit costumes, fighting for the make-up table, setting up chairs, taking down chairs. There have been many memorable moments in the "Cafetorium". Fun times that will never be forgotten and low points in the lives of some people where they do depraved things that will haunt them for the rest of their lives, but we're not talking about what happened on those late night runs to Denny's, are we Markos? What we will always remember are the little quirks that makes the Company stand above the rest. Who will ever forget the myriad of "Falling Cantaloupe" that Jessica Viator left plastered to the walls backstage or the dancing and debauchery that would go on in the wings during rehearsals. The new school's theater complex will no doubt enhance the quality of the performances but no acting experience will ever rival the Cafetorium.

Most people probably look at the Math League and think, "These people have nothing better to do with their lives", but do we really put any work into it? Not really, we just show up to the meets to do some math, eat and then leave. Mostly it's the eating. While some of us just feel like going others go while demanding extra credit for math class, or possibly looking for people to meet (they didn't find anyone interesting). Others just go, but end up getting more entertainment watching the wrestling matches on the bus. We managed to make a fairly decent impression this year but next year, with out the seniors, victory may become less probable

To the few problems that we found this year we received the same answer when we investigated the issue, "The problem will be solved when we get the new school". With that we found that we would have to search for dilemma elsewhere. After the disastrous hurricane struck the Caribbean we knew we had a worthy cause to work for so we began collecting money and supplies to aid those affected by the storm. Another cause we chose to support was the Ipswich Humane Society. As a group we discussed many issues and problems we have encountered as students at Ipswich High in an effort to improve our school for everyone.

In 1921 the National Honor Society was founded. Its hope was to create an organization that would recognize and encourage academic achievement while developing other characteristics essential to citizens in a democracy. Every year Mr. Spellman takes a group of seniors to Washington D.C. to participate in Project Close-Up. Project Close-Up gives the chance for high school students from all over the country to come together and learn about each other, their government and the country they live. Students must raise their own money to attend the trip which means heavy fundraising. Some of the money students needed this year was made through selling lobster rolls and hosting a dance at the Ipswich Middle School. The students left for the trip in early March and returned a week later with some interesting stories about the Nation's capitol and the colorful character that inhabit the city.

Yearbook

The 1999 yearbook staff has had its ups and downs. We were lucky enough to get a large showing of Underclassmen, something quite uncommon in years past, to aid in the ever frustrating name and picture hunt in the underclassman section. Mr. Merullo, Meghan and Jocelyn started early and got a great start on all the advertising that needed to be done. Caroline and Markos had to spend a weekend on campus at the odious Bryant College/Jostens Yearbook seminar, they managed to agree on a cover design but not much else. When school started in the fall a good turn out appeared for the first few meetings but as the year went on the numbers dwindled down to a small but determined few. Though some procrastinated (Markos, he's sorry though.), many were furiously pumping out pages and hunting down people for statements, pictures and any other aid they might be able to supply us with. We'd like to thank Tom Keeley, our Jostens' representative, Mr. Merullo, for all his help in keeping track of the most important thing, money, and to Mr. Winters for his menacing barking which kept us all in line.

* Advisor Disclaimer: Not all of the above were faithful in their duties but we let them go and punished the others by overworking them. Mr. Winters does NOT bark!

Concert Band

It was a successful year for the band. We worked hard to prepare for the visit of our conductor-in-residence, Frank Battisti, although sometimes it took a little extra "motivation" from Mr. Dolan to get the pieces in shape. In addition to our two regular concert, we also made our contribution to school spirit by playing as the pep band at all our home football games, and continued our tradition of the Band Football League. We had many varying experiences, and whether we were preparing for a formal concert, playing Christmas carols for the annual arrival of Santa Claus, or struggling desperately to stay in tune on freezing game days, we all had a fun and memorable year.

As always, the jazz band had a busy year, playing at both elementary schools, competitions, and numerous jazz band festivals in addition to our regular seasonal concerts. With the help of the Joyce DiCamillo Trio, we all learned more about our roles in the band and about jazz playing in general. We improved much as an ensemble, and after a rough start (and long rough start), we eventually got "Jumpin' at the West Side" together. And even as we became a tighter ensemble, we had our share of free playing with "Gentle Piece," and had the honor of being the "weird band" at competition. It's been an unforgettable year, full of some of the most diverse and exciting playing experiences we've ever had.

IHS VOCAL ENSEMBLES

This year was a record year for enrollment in Concert Choir - 94 singers in all! They were literally spilling off of the risers in the Winter Concert. First, the choir included performances with instrumental ensembles, and the performance of a major work (John Rutter's Requiem with singers from local churches. This busy group works on a large and challenging repertoire of music during the year, and manages to have fun at the same time.

1998 Ipswich High School Concert Band And Concert Choir Tour Of England

On April 16, 1998, the Ipswich High School Concert Band and Concert Choir took to the skies and headed east to begin a week long tour of England. After spending a full day at school the students piled onto busses with luggage and instruments in tow and anxiously sped off in coaches leaving their parents behind.

Suffering from a horrible case of jet-lag, the 110 students and 10 chaperones spent the next day moving sluggishly through the streets of London.

Off again the next morning, the group found themselves in Salisbury and in Bradford-on-Avon to perform at the newly built Wiltshire Music Centre. After an intense day of practicing, breaking the toilets and bantering at people who had just gotten in car accidents, the Band and Choir put on an astonishing show. Following the show, a few students celebrated their victorious efforts by eating Chinese Take-out at two in the morning on the empty, fog-laden streets of Bradford-on-Avon.

After a brisk afternoon of sightseeing, the young musicians were off again. Their next stop was Bristol and its surrounding towns. Many of the students were pleased with their host families as they had many children of the same age who gave their American guests a taste of what they do for fun on the weekends in England. The Band and Choir performed twice in Bristol; one concert at the magnificent Bristol Cathedral and one at Clifton Cathedral, a modern cathedral. Clifton was a very important concert as it involved two other school bands who would be participating with Ipswich's. This concert also marked a visit from a member of the British government who gave a lengthy presentation that unfortunately, not many people in the rear of the immense massed bands heard.

The final night in Bristol was marked with a Barn Dance. Though the music and dance was not up to many of the American student's liking everyone had fun none the less, celebrating the evening with their new friends. After a teary departure, the band and choir rested on the long trip back to London in hopes of getting in some more adventure before the trip came to an end.

Awake and ready to party the Americans tore into the heart of London. Many ran to the trendy shops and bought more Doc Martin's than they knew what to do with. Some decided to check out the six story arcade down the street, some the piercing/tattoo boutiques and then there were some who decided to go "laser tagging". That evening the Beefer Eater got over a hundred rowdy teenagers who loved slamming their fists in celebration a bit too hard and are still very sorry about the glasses and platters that were broken in the process. That dinner officially marked the end of the trip but the many new camaraderie's that were formed on this venture, not to mention the numerous embarrassing stories, would not be soon forgotten.

INTERNATIONAL IHS

I came from Germany in September and stayed first in Danvers. At the end of October, I came to Newbury. I really like it here because the school is small and so everything is very comfortable and familiar. The atmosphere in school is nice and the people are very friendly to me. The school system is very different from Germany; the school here is more fun.

When I first came, I could understand English, but I had to translate it into German. Now I don't think in German anymore; I can talk and think in English.

I enjoy my host family very much. They try to make my stay memorable. They treat me like a daughter, not just someone living with them.

Four years ago I was a scared little freshman dreading my first day of high school. I thought to myself, "I can't wait till I'm a senior!" Well, here I am, a senior, and moving on to college, hopefully. You see its strange, these last four years went by so fast, I can hardly remember anything from my freshman year. Why does everyone think I had long hair? I don't remember that! The things I can remember though, are all the good times I had in and out of school, especially out of school! The best times though, are when you share a good time with others, and later on down the road you can reflect on them and say to yourself what a good time it was. There are a few things I want to say to certain people that I had some of those good times with, you'll know what I mean. H.D. - Really missed you, school could have been a lot cooler with you, but I couldn't have shared all the women with you. Never forget all the times at your house. The basement was very useful. Watch the spin! What's a nug? GDA is not better than us at sports! I thought it would all be better when we got our licenses? Why is your sister so mad? she is acting like you just backed over her stuff. NEW-B Who is Bimba? That's two thus far shooter. MANHUNT. Alien Nation. Meet you at Mimi's. The Train. 3x's score night. Andover is too far. BF prom. Mallrats. -Its been fun bro, thanks for being such a good friend. Hey, your plan will never work! Best of Luck. B.G. - What can I say man, its been fun! Missed you at school, but I think it worked out great for you. New years eve, your place. Hey, you sure Matt isn't going to flip the car? Again, don't you get bored with that? How is your stomach anyway? Tomatoes!, and a squirrel? Hampton Beach. 5th grade letters. Clark Beach, that's an interesting spot Does Pingree have an alarm system? Oh no, we're locked out. Hoops, my place. Do I get a good night hug? Ben, a hug! SLUGS, what was that all about? ALL the sleep overs. -Thanks for being such a good friend. Best of luck all-star. J.S. - What could I start with? Well, there are two letters I could think of! Oh yes, I didn't forget, SB! Sorry, I had to. New-B's bed? come on, there are better places than that. Oh no, I dropped the blanket. Bolton Valley. Respect the length. Doyan, what were you doing there? The bomber. Stones. NOD. Sister's of ND. Jake's House. BF prom. What's the guild? Ky's house. IHS Soccer and Track. Nantucket. Mallrats. -Thanks for being there, and being a good friend, it meant a lot, best of luck. KY.N. - Good idea, your place will work perfectly. In terms of the Brazilian? Class gossip and story teller. You and your women. Respect the length. Can I borrow the video? Sniper 6. NOD. I'll see you at H's house. Senior Kush #1. Coach is my hero. Nantucket. IHS soccer. Hey lets get them trash cans. Why do you have two mail boxes? Who is ringing the door bell. Who is the red head on your lawn. You were always the stud of the group and will always be. Mallrats. Always think box. -Thanks for being there, and being a good friend, it meant a lot. Best of luck. B.R. - All I can say is, how many names do you have? Your house was cool until after. Don't get trapped. I'll meet you at Saint Joe's. Salisbury beach and Middleton and the Train. Jake's House. Track was always fun. I hear boot camp sucks, you better get the grades up. -Thanks for being a good friend, best of luck. J.B. - Did we ever do anything in class? Who is Blackbeard? Benson! Cable Guy. That is one big plate of nachos. Where are my pumpkins. All your B-day parties. The movies always scared me. Were is AJ's blanket. Bancroft, you suck! Timmy D. WWF Monday Night Raw. Jim how did you get home from the fair? -Thanks for being a good friend, best of luck. J.D. - Hey, easy on the video's. Cable Guy. No more movies for you. Put down the guitar and stop it with the hed! Base to chair 1, their are 2 guys in the dunes, can you take care of them? You're only track captain because I started too late. -Thanks for being a good friend, best of luck. K.N. - Bolton Valley 1+2, now that was fun. Sister's of ND. NOD. Jake's House. Indirect sir! Soccer from U-12 up till now. Wake Forest will kill Duke. Materials processing 10th grade. Was that an Ambulance? Hey, we believe you, there is no need to show us. WWF at the garden, back in the day. New-B's house. NOD. What happened to your windshield? Tackle football in your back yard. Hoops at my place. Mallrats. -Thanks for being a good friend, best of luck. -To anyone else I forgot- Sorry! Best of Luck everyone.

To Our Elizabeth,
We have watched you grow into an incredible young woman. You are one on the most caring, considerate and confident people we know. These qualities will nurture success wherever you go.

Chris Vann's $125 Assessment

A popular cliché is that the high school experience will be the best years of our lives, that for the rest of our existence the time invested for these four years will be considered a jubilant, complacent period against which nothing can ascend equally or surpass. For some people, this might just hold true. In the twisted, non-sensible realm of high school, many paradoxes of reality find a niche and thrive. Realizing that, it is highly probable that a former jock will look back and shed a tear over great athletic accomplishment while planting a shrub in a rich man's estate, or performing one of many other menial tasks. I, on the other hand, would confront the cretin who would have the gall to tell me that tired five and dime adage and, after laughing in that person's face, tell them rather curt and plainly that they're damn dead wrong.

If it were true that one's enjoyment of life took a downward spiral after graduation, wouldn't it be easier to just dig a grave and climb into it rather than continue on and facing immutable futility? If high school is as good as it gets, then why bother living out the rest of your natural life since nothing else will be as great or rewarding? The truth is high school, like its preceding counterparts, is a place where the main intent is to keep "young adults" off the streets until they turn eighteen, and thereby become eligible for prison. For a person of average intelligence, such a facility can scarcely be called a development necessity, let alone a veritable pleasure palace a la Xanadu. Conversely, a person of average mental inadequacy, or a median idiot, would describe high school as being "a place to grow." Though such people constitute a majority in this society, their views can hardly be considered relevant, since they believe their purpose in life is to breed like rabbits and watch sports on television.

As for myself, I believe that mankind relies on the most talented individuals to give meaning and purpose to existence. The creative genius is in this day, and has always been simultaneously admired and despised, because it is his innovative mind and spirit that supplies detail and originality to the world, thus dwarfing the mediocre, the uninspired, by comparison. High school is an institution dedicated to the destruction of the individual. It promotes mass assimilation into the current status quo society, instructs students on subjects whose practical application is limited, and in tandem with that, limits or outlaws intelligent, rational thought by forcing students to absorb an approved philosophy, thus making them all sheep nearly capable of reciting limited pedantic material. Most heinous of all, it implicates doubt in the minds of budding prodigies, because the universal bray is we know what's best.

Well, they don't. Maliciously placed doubt must be erased completely. Doubt in the individual, for one's own worth, is a crippling aberration that limits future enterprises. A true man struggles on, despite the odds and privations he faces; struggles and endeavors viciously until he either achieves the zenith of his dominion and quenches his desires with success, or dies. It is up to said man to make that decision consciously, by himself. I have already made my decision. It was made years ago.

Don't expect me to get all blubbery now that it's over; I won't. A quarter century from now, when you housewives and sanitation workers stage a class reunion, leave my name off the list. I'll have better things to do than relive memories of torment and misery by immersing myself back into the black hole of hell. For years—such darkness had consumed me, strangled my will to life. Only now does a piercing light find its way to my eyes: it is the promising ray of sunlight. Morning has come.
